Dear Mr. Steers,

Adrian Sigala Chavez is an excellent fit for the student internship position at the district's Research and Accountability office. My name is Deana Ceja and I am a CTE teacher at Weber Institute of Applied Sciences and Technology. Adrian joined our Technology Academy during his sophomore year of high school. He has become increasingly enthusiastic about programming and the world of technology, and plans to pursue study and employment in computing after graduating from high school.

He shares his passion for the world of technology easily with others, and therefore has learned how to help others whenever they become stuck on challenging programming problems in class. He continues to improve his skills, and has even been working on developing games with Unity in C# independently. He is interested in more than just game development, and has earned certifications in HTML & CSS and JavaScript. Adrian is also a great team player and does a great job with working on complex tasks with others to complete large projects. One example of this is how he has joined a local robotics tournament in a school team for the first time this year.

Adrian will be a great student intern at the Professional Development Center. As one of Adrian's academy teachers, I will gladly answer any questions you have concerning him. You can reach me at the phone number 209-740-6730 or the email dceja@stocktonusd.net.

Sincerely,
